Education

PhD University of Aberdeen, Scotland, 1997

- My PhD investigated indices of chronic stress in farmed red deer. It was conducted part-time, whilst I was employed at The James Hutton Institute (formerly MLURI) and resulted in four peer reviewed publications.

MSc University College Dublin, Ireland, 1992

- My Masters by research explored the impact of visitor disturbance on the maternal behavior of the fallow deer in Phoenix Park, Dublin.

BSc De Montford University Leicester, UK, 1990

Work Experience

Associate Professor, School of Veterinary Medicine, UCD 2007-present

- I am a leader in teaching innovation namely e-learning and blended learning
- I conduct influential and innovative research, with a focus on interdisciplinarity, stakeholder engagement and have experience in farm, equine and companion animal sectors
- I am responsible for the initiation of research in veterinary ethics and veterinary behavioural medicine at UCD School of Veterinary Medicine
- I represent UCD on three key government committees that are of strategic importance to animal welfare policy in Ireland

Lecturer, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, UCD, 1995-2007

- My key roles were to develop a teaching portfolio in animal welfare. In 2000, I was conferred with a President's Teaching Award for Excellence in Teaching, resulting from a student nomination. The sabbatical award provided an opportunity to collaborate with colleagues in Denmark and Sweden to create an International online learning tool www.aedilemma.net, which was nominated for an EMBO award in 2007

Higher Scientific Officer, The James Hutton Institute (formerly MLURI), Scotland, 1991-1995

- My key responsibilities were to design and conduct research to investigate indices of chronic stress in farmed red deer. This multidisciplinary research culminated in the publication of four peer reviewed papers and successful completion of a PhD thesis, conducted part-time.

Publications

I have 150+ peer reviewed journal articles, conference papers and book chapters. My Google Scholar h-index is 19 and i10-index is 43. Full list: <https://people.ucd.ie/alison.hanlon>
